

Training

Written by layer3

Saturday, 07 July 2007 04:54 - Last Updated Monday, 12 July 2010 14:04

One of the biggest changes a company goes through is recreating a business process from a traditional physical process to a virtual one. That requires training. Training by the creator or the systems architect is a key consideration when developing your current process into a business process.

If your looking at a team that does not offer to train you and your team to use that system that they have developed for you then move on.